NEW DELHI

- India's Prime Minister Narendra Modi has said his country would respond strongly to what he describes as a future 'terrorist attack', after four days of military exchanges with neighbouring Pakistan. "This is not an era of war, but this is also not an era of terror," Modi said in his first public address since days of intense shelling and aerial incursions, carried out by both sides, began. These followed a militant attack in Indian-administered Kashmir that killed 26 people, for which India blamed a Pakistan-based group. Islamabad has strongly denied backing the group in question.
